As an avid nature photographer,
I want to book a 2 week long camping trip near
popular landmarks,
so I can add them into my portfolio.

Ryley Goodine Desn344 DS03

Persona

Tony 27 Single Lives alone with his dog

Architect
Edmonton

Active
Responsible
Strong work ethic
Sense of adventure

Goals/motivations:

- Find time to catch up with friends
- Get away from the city life/work life
- Create happy memories with friends

Frustrations:

- Wants to find time to relax
- Although he loves his job, he wants a moment to connect with his friends and find a time for his own enjoyment

Hobbies, Interest, and Camping Related Knowledge:

- Grew up camping learning basic skills
- Architecture
- Hiking
- Building a fire
- Water related activities (canoeing/ kayaking)

Tony is a hard-working, young adult. He lives in Edmonton. He is a workaholic and is in need of a break in order to reconnect with his friends and find work/life balance. He was told he is required to take a 3 week vacation and he decided to take advantage of this opportunity by getting away from the city and hanging out with his friends, who he has not hung out with for a long time due to being busy with work.

Since it is summer, in mid June, and he wants to do something quick, he decided to go camping with friends. Camping is also something he did with his family as a kid so he has some knowledge regarding what the camping trip will require but he was much younger when he went with his family and unfortunately is not 100% prepared.

He decides to check out the Parks Canada Reservation App to check for any available campsites. He decides to go to Jasper because it is the closest location to Edmonton. He wants to bring his dog along for the trip so he uses the filter to see which campsite can accommodate his pet. He also specified that he wanted to bring 3 other people along. He chose the campsite based on whatever was available on the days of his vacation. The app provides warm and inviting images of the campsites being used. The app shows a page for confirming his booking. He decided the campsite was perfect and he decided to book it. He is booking for 7 days, between June 8 - 15 at site 2711 and he is bringing a large tent. He confirmed his pay.

James Bode 25 Single

Student Studying to be a photographer
Edmonton

Introspective
Dedicated
Responsible
Imaginative

Goals/motivations:

- Take stunning pictures of the wilderness around the campground for a professional portfolio piece.

Frustrations:

- Hates having to sleep outside on the ground.
- Dislikes the amount of bugs he'll be dealing with.
- Afraid of heights.

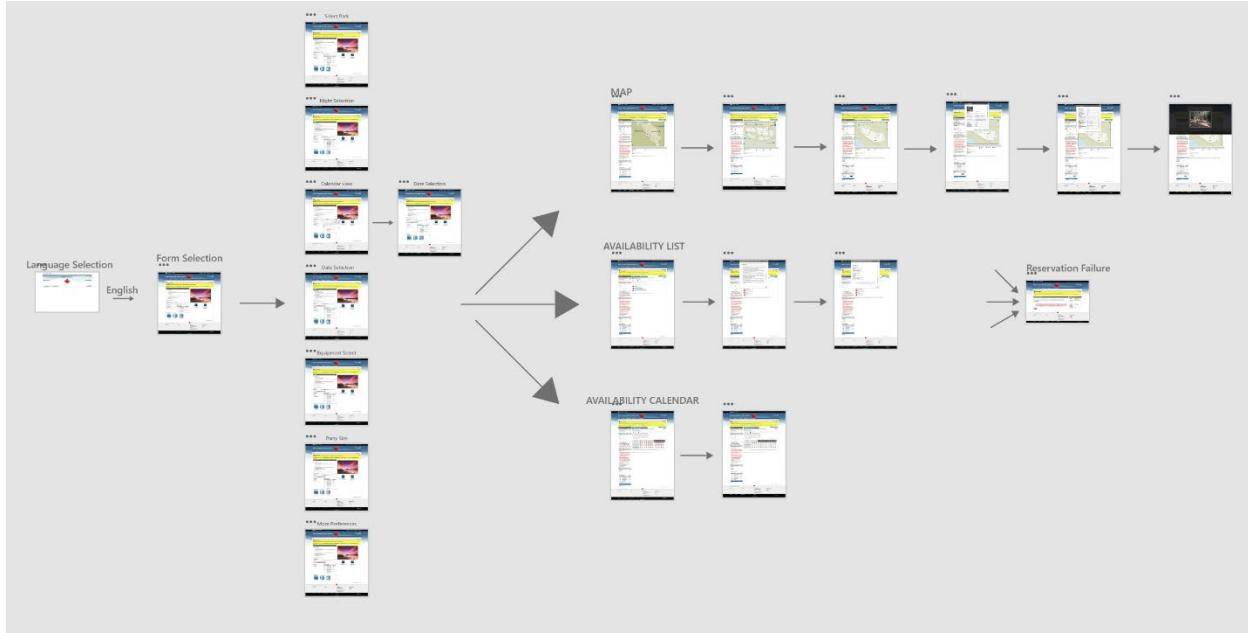

Hobbies, Interest, and Camping Related Knowledge:

- Reading lengthy novels
- Taking pictures
- Watching movies
- Keeping up-to-date on latest National Geographic newsletters

James is a hardworking student hoping to go into professional photography. He lives alone, unmarried in the city of Edmonton. He decides to go on a camping trip to the Whistler campground to help fill out his portfolio of nature photography. James doesn't know much about camping however. He's never set up a tent before, and he's never gone on a hike outside of the city before. He's worried he might get lost along the hiking trail. What he does know is to not leave food out, otherwise animals, like bears might get into it. His only experience with cooking anything over a campfire is s'mores as a child.

He decides to check out the Parks Canada Reservation App to check for any available campsites. James decides he wants to try frontcountry camping. He's only going, so guest number stays at one. For the equipment James is bringing, he decides to drive to whatever campsite comes up in his trailer. James knows he's not going to enjoy this trip without working amenities in his trailer. So he'll need a hookup for electricity to charge his camera, water to have private showers with and sewage for a working toilet. He doesn't want to have to use the bush. After that he needs to decide what campsite he's going to. He knows he wants to stay in Alberta, and he wants to go somewhere near Edmonton and Jasper is closest. He wants to take some shots of the mountains, so Whistler looks promising. The app has given him a nice selection of where in the Whistler campsite has water, electrical, and sewage hookup for a trailer. He selects that campsite. From there he's shown when the campsite is available during the year. Campsite 591 meets his needs for being able to hookup water, electricity and sewage. He decides to go for two weeks, starting on May 4 to May 18. He confirms and looks over all his choices. He pays for his reservation.

Simple search bar icon with multiple icons referencing the available search options. Utilizing icons like the microphone to indicate speech, and a camera to indicate image and the magnifying glass indicating text. All icons are evenly space and orientated on the far right within the search box.

Clean selection options for searching an image. Dashed border around the field is a subtly different colour, and the dash lines help project the idea of where to place a grabbed object. Similar in real world examples in the location you place a stamp on a postcard. Buttons within the dashed border show other possible options for searching an image in with coloured icon and added text.

Sign in address is very minimalistic. Gives other suitable options to be entered in a lighter text colour. Button to continue to the next field is orientated on the right of the page, giving the illusion of actual motion within the form. Other sign in options are aligned and given below the main one in a separate box.

Whistler Campsite: 59J

Campers and visitors will see that Whistlers Campground has undergone a great deal of construction work, and that significant numbers of dead and dying trees, impacted by mountain pine beetle, have been removed.

In place of the removed trees, young saplings will flourish with the space and sunshine they now have. But trees grow slowly. It will take many years for these saplings to gain height. In the meantime, many campsites in Whistlers now have more sun and greater mountain views than before.

In areas where electrical, sewer and water services were upgraded, the ground has been significantly disturbed. Much of the campground has been re-seeded, but it will take time for natural grasses and vegetation to grow this summer. We ask that you stay off the newly seeded areas.

You may consider bringing a self-supported tent to create a shady and dry spot at your site. Cosmetic work, including landscaping and greening-up of the campground, will extend through the rest of 2021 and over the winter.

A great option for beginners. Frontcountry campgrounds usually include:

- washrooms with showers
- kitchen shelters
- electrical
- sewer and water hookups
- Wi-Fi access zones

Campgrounds may also be close to outdoor theatres, beaches, grocery stores, playgrounds and picnic shelters. Sites may have a fire pit, or access to a shared fire pit.

Frontcountry campgrounds are generally easy to access by car, and RVs are welcome in many locations.

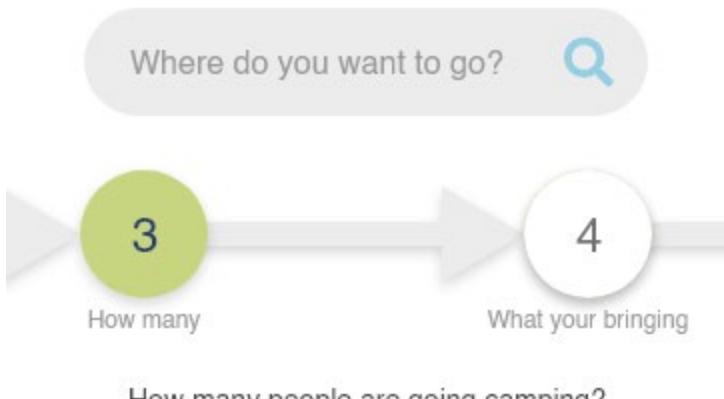

A few locations also offer equipped camping: we provide the camping equipment you'll need (tent, stove, lantern, etc.), thanks to our partnership with MEC.

Whistler's Campground now offers oTENTiks, canvas-walled tents, where you can 'rough it' without getting your clothes ruffled. Each oTENTik has all the basic comforts of home-wooden floors, bunkbeds, sleeping pads, heat and lights.

Parks Canada has a total of 21 bookable units. These oTENTiks can accommodate up to four adults and two children.

These accommodations are exceptionally popular and must be reserved in advance.
